Night Bike Ride (Day of the Dead) Saturday 29th

A few times per year, Mexico City's Environment Ministry organizes a Night Ride through Reforma Avenue and Chapultepec Park. The most traditional and famous night event is the Ride of Día de Muertos. People are dressed in traditional costumes and have their faces painted with skulls. Last year, this ride broke attendance records with more than 95,000 attendees. Meeting point TBA, 19:00pm

Xochimilco Canals, Sunday 30th

Bienvenidos (welcome to) Xochimilco! At the southern edge of Mexico City, only an hour by metro and light train from the Zócalo and the chaos of the city center, Xochimilco (Náhuatl for 'place where flowers grow') is a time-honored weekend destination for locals and visitors alike. You've made your lazy Sunday escape, and are now hosting a floating picnic party amidst the last vestiges of the canals and chinampas (floating gardens) of Tenochtitlán - the grand Aztec city on a lake that the Spanish conquistadors dubbed 'the Venice of the New World'. Declared a Unesco World Heritage site in 1987, the chinampas are still used for cultivation to this day, mainly for garden plants and flowers. While they're quiet and peaceful during the week, a fiesta atmosphere takes over on weekends, with Sundays being especially lively. This is a private tour for T2M conference participants, which includes transportation, Trajinera ride, lunch and guide. Meeting point is our base hotel Galeria Plaza, 9:00am
